Listen As ...

Here we are again for another year at PCHS, which is celebrating its 13th year of existence.

Not much is new, as usual everyone gathers in the halls, the library and the gym socializing with old friends and making new ones. Students have their usual complaints about schedules that won't work, lunchshifts without friends and trying to drop classes against school policy.

Vocational classes offer not only book learning, but on-the-job experience. Duwayne Sharp and Arnold Nelson, seniors, attach pipes to the ceiling of the welding room. Academic classes, such as choir, also experience in public appearance. The Pops Group performs at the Christmas concert.

Office aides Terri Rexrode and Robble Waugh "spat" over who's going to run the errands.

"Let's go Warriors!" The PCHS band marches in the Shrine Bowl Classic Parade before the Shrine Bowl football game between Pocahontas Co. and Greenbrier East in Fairlea, WV.

The upperclassmen find amusement in the shaking freshmen who are learning that high school is going to be a lot different! Yes, it may be different for them, but is it for those who have been here before?

Basically the school and curriculum have remained the same with only minor changes. It's still the same old place.

The Wind Cries Warrior

But things needn't sound so old and tiresome.

Let us not dwell on the past; it is 1983, 13 years after the consolidation of the three schools. During these 13 years, hard work, money, time, effort and hope have been put into building a strong school for Pocahontas County. Now the time has come to move on. Students are bored with hearing and doing the same old things. It's time to come out! It's time to build. It's time for honors, new ideas and better things for everyone at PCHS.

The year 1982-83 will see the basketball regional tournaments hosted at PCHS for the first time, a national photography winner, a state speech winner, a winning basketball season, an electronic student who amazed the state and won a full scholarship to Penn Tech, and the band traveling to Knoxville to be the host band at the World's Fair for a day. These, among others, are hearing The Wind Cry Warrior.

Sometimes pain comes with hard work; other times it comes when one least expects it. Joe Arbogast, freshman, disconnected his shoulder during p.e. and finds it painful to do anything, including putting on his pants. Mr. Glen Wade and Rick Dunbrack assist Joe. Studying can be done anywhere in the school, but April Shinaberry, junior, finds the library satisfactory for doing her studying, right.

Getting away from the "rat race" of the halls, the gym and the classrooms is Gary Rose, junior, who finds the library just the spot to let go. After school practice takes toll on the varsity cheerleaders who find it hard to keep going after a full day of school and evening practice.

Keeping the school clean and in good condition is a main concern of the administration, faculty and student body. John Nicely, senior, contributes his services during second period in keeping the school tidy.

Warrior Life Styles...

A life style is a person's way of living including the aspect of school. Varying life styles are seen at PCHS including . . .

. . . those who enjoy socializing in the halls, the library and the gym.

. . . those who reign as for the Homecoming court.

. . . those who compete as in softball and volleyball tournaments.

. . . those who are interested in movies and dances.

. . . those students who work after school and on weekends at Snow-shoe, Foodland or area businesses.

. . . those students who go to compete in regional and state contests.

. . . those who go on trips over break or on weekends.

. . . those who find time to get together at a mutual friend's house.

. . . those of the administration and faculty who go home to their kids, family or friends.

Such are some of the varied aspects of life styles of those who hear the wind cry Warrior.

One of this year's contributions to the school was a marble sign donated by the Student Council. Tony Sharp and Chris Phillips look over the new addition. The band made a special trip to Knoxville, Tennessee and the 1982 World's Fair. Melissa Shinaberry, Donna Friel, "Tennessee," Donna Gum, Deanna Grimes and Tena Beale find adventure, new friends and good times around every corner, below.

Face And Body Language

Love, anger, and boredom. They always show, if not in words then in body language.

This year was dominated by the lovers. It got so bad that Mr. Kenneth Vance, principal, had to put a stop to it. Anyone who was caught any closer than six inches was to be brought to the office and their parents were to be called!

Spirit was obvious at the school pep rallies, games, Sadie Hawkins Day, and class meetings as students supported their team and class by yelling, turning blue in the face, and getting generally hysterical.

Boredom is easy to see in a sleeping student, or when one walks down the hall and someone attacks you just because that's all they have to do. Skipping school is also a sign of boredom, as well as day-dreaming, throwing spit wads, flicking your bic, or yelling across the room to a friend because your teacher isn't making any sense whatsoever.

Sometimes during the year boredom can turn to anger. Anger can

This is what teachers face when they stand in front of class: interest (Larry Cutlip), a person who could care less (Donald McPeters), a class clown, (Pete Hatfield). Then there's always the student who looks like he's out to kill. Could this be Jesse Buchanan? "Oh no not me," is Wally Burgess's, sophomore, expression as he closes his eyes to hide the real world.

Language

Also be a result of jealousy, which can be handled by yelling at the person you're jealous of, starting a fist fight or if it happens to be your boyfriend/girlfriend you breakup.

Also what can show up in body language is being tired, particularly after having to stay up all night studying for an exam, from being out on a late date, or staying up to see the late movie. Those who do these things are the zombies the next day who need toothpicks to keep their eyes open.

Mike Cook, senior, gets a little overexcited with his team as he cheers them on to victory at Sadie Hawkins Day.

Having a good time is obvious in the body language of David Liptak, senior, as he pauses a minute for an interview with Donna Mace, sophomore.

Time Off: Every Minute Counts

Everyone these days likes to have a lot of time off to do all the things they're always wanted to do such as playing basketball in the gym or just talking to a favorite friend, but getting spare time, such as activity mornings is a privilege that is earned by students. For instance, an activity can be cancelled if students don't follow the rules or a special privilege can be given as a reward such as going to the bus early for low absences or winning the spirit week competitions. Special time off was given this year for the volleyball tournament and the softball tournament. Everyone also always looks forward to the Forestry Field Day, as well as Sadie Hawkins Day, ball games, assemblies, club period and other events.

Club periods provide time for social get-togethers in the library. Shawn Irvine, Charlie Brown, Charlie Mullens, and Shawn Gilmore (with back to camera) claim their own library corner.

It's basketball time for James Beverage, Kenneth Irvine, and Mike Burns, freshmen, who use their lunchtime for practice.

Those long tunnel-like hallways are a favorite place for meeting friends, left. Above, Monique LaStrappes and Bonnie Starks enjoy some ice cream while touring the World's Fair with the band.

Although some assemblies are very interesting, and a nice change from the same routine class schedule, others can be very dull. Some freshmen are finding things other than the assembly to keep them busy!

Amused or simply disgusted? It's hard to tell by the expressions of Terri Workman and Brenda Ricottilli, seniors, as they look at something happening in the gym.

Assemblies Fewer But Still Welcome

Although most students complain of all work and no fun, many don't realize how many activities, such as assemblies, field days and pep rallies, there are during the year. Just think how boring school would be if there were nothing during the day but classes, classes, classes!

Assemblies range from guest speakers to band concerts. This year, although the school did have a few pep rallies, some games during the day, and volleyball tournaments, there weren't nearly as many assemblies as have been held in past years.

One series of assemblies that students enjoyed but were not held this year were the Antrim Bureau's. Mr. Glen Wade, vice-principal, explained that the reason was, "It's just too expensive for what you get."

Some students and faculty members believe that the students' behavior at assemblies isn't too great, and this may be one reason student assemblies aren't encouraged. John Compton, junior, said, "The students' conduct during assemblies could be better." However, Mr. Jeff Haught, phys. ed. and weightlifting teacher believes, "as a whole, students act pretty good," while Mr. Quentin Stewart, social studies teacher said, "If they're interested, they behave well. There's always that one group, but as a whole their behavior pretty good."

Other students had other ideas about assemblies. Pat Hinkle, junior, said, "We don't have enough assemblies," while Charlie Brown, senior, thinks, "they ought to be more exciting." Chuck Wilson, sophomore, believes, "We ought to have more assemblies involving loud music." Unfortunately, due to location and small enrollment, we doubt that Van Halen will ever be able to appear here!

The basketball team had a good season, and much of the best playing came from the senior athletes. The basketball players were recognized at a pep rally before the sectional tournaments.

One of the assemblies this year, the Christmas concert, featured the band. Mr. Fauber directs the band during the presentation.

Rules are a definite must during assemblies. Although students know how they should act, sometimes they must be reminded by the faculty. Mr. Glen Wade, vice-principal, and Mr. Steve Bland, vo-ag teacher, look as if they may be reinforcing the rules.

People do a lot of strange things in their spare time. Kathleen Shaw, sophomore, shows one of the more unusual things she has done at the 4-H Junior Leaders Conference.

Off-time Jobs Special Fun

Although school does take a great deal of a student's waking hours, most have time left for out-of-school activities and/or jobs. However, most don't know those "little, but special" things that classmates enjoy doing when they are not in school. For example, Wayne Peery, senior, collects Jimi Hendrix paraphernalia. Anne Howsare, senior, experiments with cooking different types of foods. Patrick Hinkle, junior and Carol Arbogast, freshman, enjoy playing soccer, while Ginny Coleman and Laura Combs, seniors, play piano.

Although hobbies are one type of leisure activity for students, many others have another pastime, a job. Working at Snowshoe, local gas stations and grocery stores, and babysitting are about the most popular jobs of students.

Why do students feel compelled to work? Shelley Helmick, senior, babysits because "she enjoys working with children," while Greg Abdella and J.C. Winston, juniors, work at Fas Chek "mainly for the money." J.D. said "I enjoy being able to use the money I've made to buy my own things."

Some students find enjoyment in pursuing their talents. Chuck Wilson, and Pat Smith, sophomores, and junior, John Compton have put their musical skills to work by putting together a band, "Alliance."

Some students also use their time away from the regular school day to go back to school to work. Cindy Warner, senior, stays after school to learn to use the computer so that she may enter student information for computer use next year.

Even for teachers It isn't all work and no play. Mr. Bob Sheets, English teacher, is an avid tennis fan and player, although it appears that his skills extend to catching tennis balls with his teeth, this was just a trick of the camera.

he really that hungry? Actually, David Campbell, senior, is in the jello molding contest in the 4-H Junior Leaders Saturday Conference.

Two Classes Pull Through During Competition

Class spirit came through for the seniors and sophomores in 1983. Both captured victories in class competition.

The senior class made a clean sweep of the Spirit Week competition. They won the T-shirt and Tie and Badge Day, Dress-up Day, Punk Rock, Clash, and Maroon and Gold Days, as well as days early to the bus for winning the competition and coming in first for the week.

Sophomores took top place November 19 in the annual Sadie Hawkins Day competition held in the gymnasium between the senior, junior, sophomore and freshman classes.

For the freshman class Sadie Hawkins Day might have been something new, but they took first place in the egg-spoon relay and the softball-neck relay.

The sophomore class finished first in the bean spitting contest, piggy-back race, baseball bat spin relay and the toothpick-lifesaver relay.

The junior and senior classes only finished first in two events each. The juniors won the three-legged race and the wheel barrow relay. Then the seniors took the pie-eating contest and the bubble blowing contest.

Competitors in the bubble blowing events need speed, composure and strong jaws. Kathleen Shaw, sophomore, displays talent in bubble blowing as a judge measures the bubble.

Punk Rock Day gave the students a chance to dress in colorful, weird clothes. Stacey Blanchard, freshman, is an example.

Sadie Hawkins Day brings out new and different talents. David Campbell, senior, shows a talent of spitting a seed in one of the events.

More than a mouthful describes the pie eating event. Randy Pritt, junior, is eating his way to the finish.

Senior Jesse Buchanan comes from behind to assist Carl McCarty in tackling a Central Preston ball carrier. Pocahontas went down to defeat against this top-ranked team 40-0.

Freshman attendant and escort were Stephanie Radcliff and Kevin Kinnison.

Sophomore attendant and escort were Kelly Pyles and Kevin Irvine.

Junior attendant and escort were Toni Abogay and Tim Helmick.

Glenda Pyles and Rick Carpenter, 1982 Homecoming Queen and King, have just been presented their flowers and scepter at the half-time ceremony.

The Honored - Glenda, Rick

Although it was very cold, windy and later rainy, one young lady was happy enough to cry the night of October 15. Glenda Pyles, senior, was elated to hear her name announced as 1982 Homecoming Queen. Her King and escort was Rick Carpenter.

Not everyone was so happy that night, however. The Warriors, led by senior quarterback Chuck Workman, went down to defeat 40-0 to Central Preston, a team that went on to the play-offs only to be defeated by Musselmann. Chuck stated that Central Preston's main strength was their excellent running back, Brad Matheny. He added that Central Preston won the game by running the same play over and over again and Pocahontas just couldn't stop them.

The queen and her court were honored in a pre-game parade in which the court rode in convertibles around the game field. Later, the queen was crowned during half-time ceremonies by Mr. Kenneth Vance, principal.

"The Homecoming Dance was held after the game in the school gymnasium. Disc jockey Tom Wheeler from Elkins provided the music and the gym was decorated with the Spirit Chain students had made during the week in preparation for the festivities. "Many recent graduates came to the dance," said Mrs. Becky Brooks, dance sponsor, "as well as high school students." The junior class was thus able to clear over $900 for sponsoring this event.

Kelly Helmick and Chester Shifflett were first runners-up to the queen and king.

Ginny Coleman and David Michael were elected second runners-up by the student body.

Cara Hefner and Paul Murphy were elected senior attendants by the senior class.

Fashion or Fad?

Bobbi Galford and Kim Scott, seniors, show off their mini skirts, which came back into fashion this year, while they enjoy the sun.

The "walkman" was a favorite companion of many this year. David Micheal, senior, listens to music on his walkman cassette player while he works in the office.

go out to buy the game equipment for their own use at home.

Another leisure activity this year was playing with the different types of cubes, such as the Pyramid, Alexander's Star and the Snake. These games proved even more mind-boggling than the assignments given by teachers, and many students spent class time trying to solve them, much to teachers' distress.

Shinning It On

Shinning it on for the 1982 Miss Pocahontas Pageant were six PCHS ladies. The competition was held in the high school gym July 8, 1982, during the annual Pioneer Days. There were 12 contestants altogether.

The pageant had five categories: talent, swimsuit, evening gown, street dress and an individual interview. The evening gown and the street dress were the most important and each girl was judged separately in the two categories.

Out of the 12 contestants two PCHS seniors were presented with top honors for their performance in the pageant. Kim Scott was chosen Miss Pocahontas 1982 and Brenda Ricottilli was chosen first runner-up.

"Over the Rainbow" was the 1982 theme of the pageant. Pam VanReenan, senior, was one of the contestants in the pageant who got a chance to stand under the rainbow.

Miss Pocahontas of 1982, Kim Scott, senior, was crowned July 9, 1982. Kim stated for those who plan to enter the pageant, "Go for it. All it takes is a little bit of confidence and a lot of push.

Exciting Trips

Each trip taken by a group has at least one special, unique meaning for each person participating in the event. It may mean only a chance to travel, but for some it's a chance to prove themselves against others in competition.

Some clubs that took trips this year were the French Club, VICA club, and the band and FBLA. The French club went to Quebec, Canada, the VICA to competition in Beckley, the band to Knoxville, Tennessee, and Clarksburg to perform and the FBLA to Huntington to compete.

The nice thing about all of the trips was that it was not only an enjoyable trip but a learning experience. Other students went unusual places as follows: Darrell Schiebel, sophomore, attended an art camp held at Cedar Lake; Bonnie Stark, senior, went to conservation camp at Jackson's Mill, and Brenda Curry, senior, went to Washington, D.C., for winning the Voice of Democracy contest.

The French club members who went to Quebec. First row: P. Hinkle, B. Layman, A. Lands, J. McKenney, C. McKenney, L. Jarrell and V. Burgess. Back row: T. Hannah, D. Dean, L. Brown, K. Hannah, D. Castel, K. Phillips, E. Newkirk and B. Shelton.

The PCHS band, or as A. James Manchin put it, "the Goodwill Ambassadors to the state of West Virginia," spent four days in Knoxville, Tennessee. Although one of those days was spent performing, it was not all work and no play. Melissa Shinaberry, sophomore, makes a big friend!

Each year a student is picked from a school-wide competition to attend conservation camp at Camp Caesar during the summer. Bonnie Starks, senior, was chosen to attend the camp last summer.

Taking trips can be fun as Donna Friel, sophomore, finds out during the band's trip to Knoxville.

Several camps are held each summer ranging from majorette camp to science camp. Darrell Schieble, sophomore, attended an art and photography camp at Cedar Lakes last summer. Darrell is also a national winner in the National Scholastic Photography Competition and his winning print will be on display in New York.

Suzy Fleming won the United Nations Pilgrimage test and will represent Pocahontas County at New York in July.

Those placing in the annual FBLA regional competition at Oak Hill in March were Sara Riley, Becky Shelton and Martha Barlow. Right, David Campbell, Kim Scott, Jamie Burks, Donna Gum and Sean Milliner were selected for the All-State Choir or Band.

Competition: The Name Of The Game

Whether one is playing a game of monopoly or a game of basketball, competition is the name of the game. Some contests, like selection for the All-State Band and Chorus, are taken seriously because they help students to win recognition, while others, such as basketball and football, are entered just for amusement.

Some people even go as far as to think of life itself as just one big contest with people competing against one another for jobs, friends, power, etc. In high school students compete against each other for grades, sports, for girlfriends and boyfriends, and later for scholarships. Such high school competition can help prepare one for the more serious and intense contests to be entered upon graduation.

On these two pages are students who weren't afraid to enter, participate and in most cases win in the battle against their peers. Perhaps through such experiences they're the ones who will find themselves best prepared to meet the challenge.

FFA members who received recognition this year were Jeff Baxter, Shawn Gilmore, Don Kiner and Keith Shoemaker.

Greg Monk was chosen from students whose parents work for Associated Universities Incorporated to receive a 4-year college scholarship.

The three juniors that were chosen to go to Charleston for Know Your State Government Day were Beth Harper, Pat Hinkle, Margorie Howsare.

The FFA nominated girls for FFA sweetheart and Kelly Plyes, junior, won by secret ballot. The FFA Queen, who is a member of the FFA Chapter, was senior Terri Workman.

Although our football team had a losing season with a record of one and nine, one senior, Chuck Workman, was a winner. He received All New River Valley Conference, Second Team All-Southern, First Team Beckley News All-Southern, and Second Team All-State.

Competitive Enthusiasm

Though not everyone can be a winner the enthusiasm is there to participate in clubs, sports and other activities at local, regional and state levels of competition.

In the fall there is football and girls basketball. In the winter are speech contests and basketball. In the spring it's time for band and choir competition, VICA and FBLA regional contests, journalism write-offs, track meets, and scholarship awards. The summer is the time to work on exhibits for the county 4-H fair and the annual State Fair where students compete with clothing, cooking, agricultural, and livestock exhibits.

Only one member of the Warrior basketball team was named to the New River Valley Conference poll of outstanding high school basketball players. Tim Helmick, junior, was named honorable mention in the poll.

A trip to Washington DC was won by Brenda Curry, senior, who was the top state finalist in VFW Voice of Democracy Speech Contest. Brenda will be going to San Diego in the summer to attend a national reunion of those who were state winners.

Representing the PCHS VICA group at state competition in electronics was Todd Shreve, senior. Todd won first place at state by building a digital circuit. Todd will be going on to national competition in Louisville, Kentucky.

Tourney Time

The competition was fierce during the softball and volleyball tournaments at PCHS this year. The seniors won the first annual softball tournament, thus defeating the freshmen, sophomores and juniors. Each team had one class sponsor as a coach and the teams consisted of 10 players, five male and five female. The games went fast. Five innings were played per game and the batter had only one chance to hit the 16 inch softball. Because the ball was so big, nearly everyone had trouble hitting it any distance.

The spring volleyball tournaments occupied many students' time and energy. Each class entered three teams, one of all boys, one of all girls and one co-ed. After approximately 17 games of double elimination play, the senior boys', senior co-ed and sophomore girls' teams were victorious.

The major purpose of these games is to generate some enthusiasm between the classes through competition. An intramural basketball tournament between classes is in the planning for next year if the level of student involvement is high, according to Coach Delmos Barb.

It's a hit! Shari Vance, freshman, shows the correct way to send the 16 inch softball flying.

don't care, just get back out there and play!" Mike Burns, forestry teacher, directs the action after a disagreement at the softball tournament.

"Run, run, run!" Charlie Fauber, band instructor and senior sponsor, shows his enthusiasm at the tournaments.

By sights and sounds

Four years remembered

It wasn't the usual Awards Day Ceremony that students attended Friday afternoon May 20, although approximately members of the student body did receive awards.

Six seniors worked with a faculty committee of senior sponsors to organize a program that through sights and sounds would be reminiscent of the past four years at PCHS. A slide program was presented on the wall by the stage that showed highlights of what the seniors might remember from their freshman, sophomore, and junior, as well as senior years. At the same time a program of each years; top ten songs was played. These visual and musical highlights were presented between awards presentations to break the monotony.

The seniors helping to organize the program were Jamie Burks, Sean Millner, Tammy Armstrong, Jane Kelley, Brenda Curry and David Michael.

Receiving major awards that day were Toni Arbogast and Beth Harper, juniors — the "I Dare You" Award; Jesse Buchanan, senior — The Arch G. Wooddell Sportsmanship Award; Sean Millner, senior — the Charles E. Moore Scholarship; Helen Miller, senior — the David E. Smith Vocational Award; Sarah Riley, senior — the Self-Reliance Award.

Second place winner at the district Soil Conservation Speaking Contest was Rhonda Hunt, senior, who accepts a certificate from Mr. Steven Bland.

Its all smiles for Sarah Riley and Mr. Kenneth Vance, principal, who presents Sarah the Self-Reliance Award.

Precious And Few

It seemed like being in a land of rainbows, unicorns, butterflies, and raindrops when one went to the 1983 Junior-Senior Prom.

There was a fantastic array of beautiful gowns and dashing tuxedos at the gala event. Couples were in the mood for dancing and romancing as Roanoke's K-92 F.M. disc jockey, David Lee Michaels, was spinning his records.

Many girls looked for David Lee Michaels to get his autograph for their memory books which were given to them as they entered the Prom. Some girls even got the pictures taken with him.

Food and refreshments, such as potato chips, crackers, cheese balls, dip, and punch were served in the cafeteria during the Prom.

Above: Prom night was a big night for a lot of people, but for Rick Carpenter and Shelley Helmick, seniors, it will be a night to never forget. They were chosen Prom King and Queen.

Left: Paul Murphy, senior, unaware of the photographer, snatches a kiss from Rhonda Maddy, while Helen Miller, senior, thinks of the night ahead with boyfriend, Kenny. Left: Fun, laughter, and dancing the night away were what the Prom was all about. Kim Scott, Debbie Smith, Jamie Burks and Donna Gurn, seniors, seem to be doing just that.

Fun And Games

Many skills are needed in the tree felling, log rolling, and axe handling events of the annual Forestry Field Day.

It was close this year, but with their more advanced skills Forestry II won by 39 to 38 over Forestry I.

The annual senior - faculty basketball game was also dominated by the "advanced" skills of the faculty. The game ended with the score 54-32, in favor of the faculty.

The stars of the halftime performance were amateur majorettes Tony Miano and Robert Sheets, teachers who entertained with their rendition of a majorette twirl and dance routine.

Getting ready to jump for the ball is Kenneth Schoolcraft, senior, and Coach Bob Sheets while both teams prepare to get the ball and go.

Giving a little dance for the student body during half-time is Mr. Tony Miano, drafting teacher.

An impartial official, Tony Pondexter, senior, referees the senior faculty basketball game. The sun glasses were not only to protect his eyes from the lights, but also from the sparks that flew between the teachers and seniors!

In the vocational division of the school several trade classes are offered to give students a taste of what certain jobs really consist of. Troy Wilson, senior, Mr. Steve Bland, vo-ag teacher and Gary Scott, senior, work in the ag. shop several hours a week.

Warrior Language . . .

A language is "words and expressions of a particular group or field" as defined by Webster's Dictionary. There are several kinds of language at PCHS which include the language of . . .

. . . those who teach and study English, reading and American Literature.

. . . those who start their college careers early by taking College English.

. . . those who learn the language and fundamentals of general math, geometry, Algebra I, II, III and Trig.

. . . those who find the language and culture of other countries interesting.

. . . those who take vocational classes to learn new skills for different occupations.

. . . those who help make the special education students reach unforeseen hopes and dreams.

Here are only a few of the many who make PCHS a learning institution and who hear The Wind Cry Warrior.

College English is a challenge to many seniors who find it in themselves to accept that challenge and succeed.

Topics, Facts, Footnotes

Topics, thesis statements, footnotes, bibliographies. These are familiar words to everyone at school, especially those who are writing research papers for English or Social Studies classes and who find themselves making several trips to the library to acquire information.

The library this year instituted a new close stacks policy. If a student wanted to check out a book he had to first find it in the card catalogue and then request the book by its library number at the circulation desk. This policy was adopted to help curb the disappearance of books from the library.

This was also the last year of phased English at the high school. In a "return to basis" movement, the program next year is to include only basic, general and college preparatory English classes.

Sometimes chewing on a fingernail is a way to help ones concentration. Beverly Barnett, sophomore, is in deep thought.

The study of American history can be all-absorbing. Mike Burns, freshman, concentrates on a history assignment.

Library time can also be sharing time for Terri Workman and Brenda Riccottilli, seniors.

Some classrooms just seem to be packed with students working to get an English credit. At left, Mrs. Fay Moore's English students wind up a nine weeks in grammar.

For 13 years PCHS has known only one librarian, Miss Peggy Smith. After several years of teaching at Marlinton High School, she moved to the new consolidated school when the doors opened and has been here since. Next year, though, some one new will open the library doors because Miss Smith retired in June of 1983.

Learning a new language can be rewarding. Mrs. Fay Moore's French class works on translating sentences as part of their classwork.

The small Latin class offers the advantages of special help from the teacher. Father Roy Lombard helps Leigh Ann Hayes, freshman.

The French class attended the Foreign Language Festival at Elkins. Vada Burgess won an award with a display of flags; Tony Landis, freshman, won in extemporaneous speaking; Lisa Jarrell, junior, not shown, won recognition with a display of postage stamps dealing with French speaking countries.

Art, language:

A pathway to 'culture'

The improvement of the mind, tastes and manners of a person or group of people is generally thought to be accomplished through what many call acquiring "culture." Students here have the chance to become "cultured" not only through specialized courses to help them with self-improvement, but also by studying the languages and cultures of other countries including France and ancient Rome.

The study of art provides a window to the thoughts and feelings of other people, other cultures and other times. Three levels or years of art are taught at PCHS, although students may enroll in art for four straight years. They participate in artistic endeavors that range from weaving to acrylic painting to mural design.

French and Latin students find that they are members of generally very small classes where they get much individual attention. French students learn not only to read and write French, but are encouraged to learn conversational French. They attended the Language Festival in Elkins this year and some even went to Quebec this summer!

Doing “your own thing”

Sooner or later, everyone likes to have a few moments to get away and “do their own thing,” but school doesn’t usually provide the opportunity to do this very often. There is one room at PCHS, however, that does provide the setting for just such experiences — the learning center.

The learning center is set up to provide individual study areas as well as a broad spectrum of materials ranging from interior design to how to lay blocks to beginning French. Any student who needs or desires such information is free to use the center at his leisure. It is also the location of the classes for adults seeking such knowledge or who want to earn their high school degree. Mrs. Linda S. Beverage is in charge of both programs.

There are other students who hear the “beat of a different drummer” and enroll in one of the many available music classes where they get special instruction in such areas as voice, guitar, special instrument, music appreciation, and more.

Mr. Charles Fauber, music

Students who need special help in some subjects find the learning center of much use to them because they can find special materials to work with without disturbing other students or other students disturbing them. Randy Johnson, freshman, watches a film at the learning center. Below, practice and practice, and more practice goes into playing an instrument, even the drums! Chuck Wilson, sophomore, played drums this year.

"The most beautiful thing we can experience is the mysterious. It is the source of all true art and science."

Albert Einstein

Classes such as chemistry, calculus, and biology provide an opportunity for the mysteries of the earth to be explored by the students. Through formulas, experiments, and lots of homework, a math or science student can discover the "hows" and "whys" of the unexplained.

Many people take simple things for granted; for example, light, water, numbers, etc. But once a person experienced a math or science class, he or she realizes that these things are not simple, but complex!

Science and math classes not only provide education in the classroom, they give students the opportunity to compete with other students who share the same interests. For instance, the annual Math Field Day brings students together from around the state in order to challenge their knowledge of general math, algebra, and calculus.

"Cut and peel" are the procedures in important when peeling the skin off the frog. Tammy White Sheets, carefully strip the frog of his protective skin.

Putting up frogs Isn't everyone's "cup of tea." Jeanna Grimes, sophomore, doesn't seem too enthusiastic.

Working diligently on her geometry problems is Melissa Shinaberry, sophomore. Geometry helps students gain knowledge of cubes, roots, etc. In learning the basic skills of the math geometry.

Working for the Future

Deciding what to do with your life is a big decision for students. In making this decision many students take vocational classes such as welding, agricultural science, forestry, or carpentry, to try to discover if one of these trades would appeal to them as a career possibility. In these classes they learn what it takes to master a trade.

In all of these classes one has to be willing to work and have a theory of how things are to be built. Students really work hard and when they are done they can appreciate a finished product. The carpentry class this year constructed buildings, cabinets, and picture frames.

The welding class members mostly worked all year on becoming certified welders. They built wood stoves which they raffled.

The agricultural science students performed a variety of jobs. They learned how to work with farm machinery and with farm animals. They have rebuilt tractors and horse trailers and other odd things throughout the year.

The forestry class each year holds a Forestry Field Day to raise money for their class activities.

John Burns, Scott Howell, seniors, and Gene Wilfong, junior, are working on their newest project, welding booths. Mr. Bland, ag. science teacher, fixes the mortar.

Chris Phillips, junior, works smoothing edges on his gun rack. Left, Mr. Burns' forestry class decides if this tree is what they need.

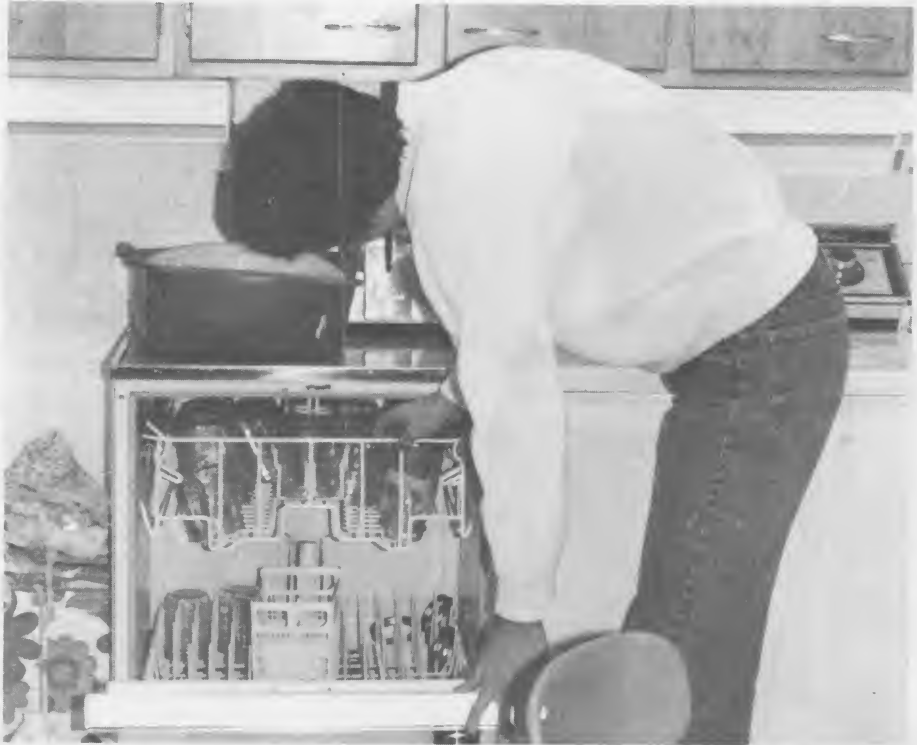

Home Economics gives students a chance to learn something they can use in the future. Chris Jesse, senior, opens a dishwasher to remove utensils.

Mr. Gary Beverage, electronics teacher shows Leo Conner, senior, electronic equipment to be used and worked with as part of the class.

The Vocational Experience

The comprehensive consumer and homemaking program is designed to help students become competent in skills dealing with personal, home, and community life. The program has all areas of homemaking including clothing, family life and other areas in the mini courses. Activities include the FHA Family Dinner, Easter cards sent to Denmar patients, and the school clean-up campaign.

Mr. Gary Beverage's electronics class traveled to Penn. Tech. to see an electrical school into their busy schedule. They also put a P.A. system into the Green Bank Middle School and worked on repairing different electrical appliances.

The electricity class did bookwork and booth circuits for classwork as well as put in over-head lights in Marlinton Middle School, new circuits in the carpentry classroom, and lighted the new school sign.

Power For Thought

Stamina and confidence are not easily obtained, but with the right instructors and classes, the shyest student can be brought out of his shell. Classes such as physical education and weightlifting, increase a student's awareness of physical fitness.

Such classes give feelings of accomplishment and self worth to the student who participates in the games and exercises.

Advanced Physical Education is taught to upperclassmen who either like to be physically active or are looking forward to a future in physical education.

Along with P.E., freshmen are required to take a health class, preferably during the sophomore year. This decision was made by the state legislature who felt that health needed to be taught separately.

Practice makes perfect, especially in sports. Coach Jeff Haught instructs Connie Ervine, freshman, in the fundamentals of shooting a foul shot. Susan Tjarks practices her skills on the trampoline.

In third period reading class is Bobby Riley, freshman, working in his textbook. Reading is taught five periods a day.

Grading papers is a daily job for Mrs. Elizabeth Rabel, special education teacher, and her aide Mrs. Janet Shank.

The Special Education program has been a success for many students. Many students are now able to read and write.

Special Classes, Special Students

Special. What does it mean? "Distinguished by some unusual quality, unique, additional, and extra," are some of the meanings given by Webster's Dictionary. These are the words that help describe the special classes at PCHS — special education, special reading, special topics, and College English.

Special Education is divided up into three sections - academic, home economics, and vocational. The boys this year in vocational classes have done woodworking, while the students in home ec. have done macramé. The academic department helps the students with any class from English to Social Studies.

Special Reading is taught just to freshmen in place of regular freshman English. These students intensively try to improve their reading skills to be better prepared to enter the phased English program as sophomores.

The Special Topics classes for gifted students are taught by three teachers, Mrs. Sharon Vance, who takes care of the computer and watches over the students, Mrs. Pat Keller, who takes care of radio production classes, and Mr. Norman Alderman, who takes care of the photography class.

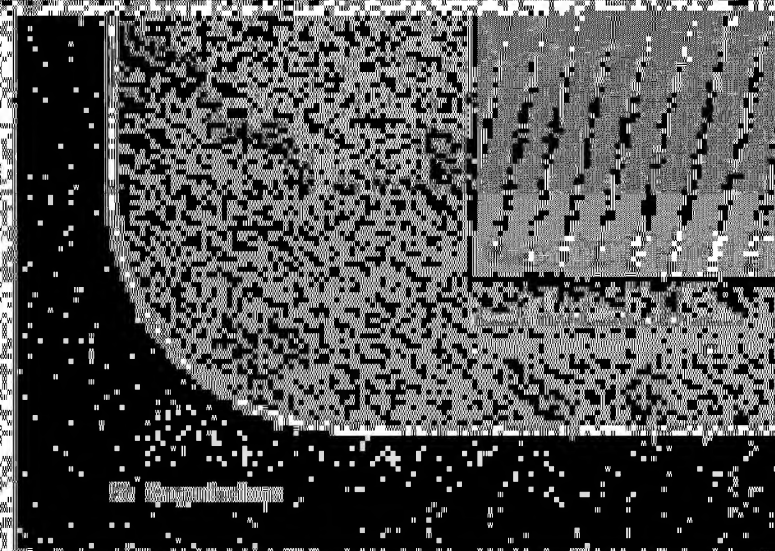

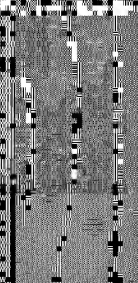

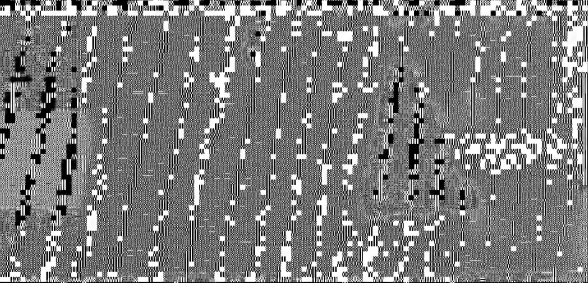

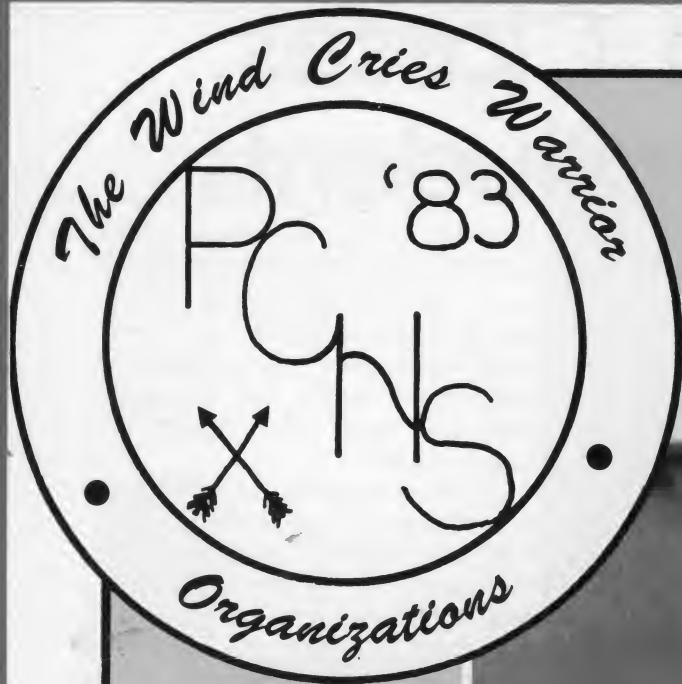

This is the third successful year for the special College English Program. This gives the enrolled seniors six hours college credit for the year.

A Warrior Nation Is

A Warrior nation is composed of several clans that combine their strength to form one united nation. These clans are . . .

. . . the FBLA members competing in the state competition at Huntington.

. . . the National Honor Society members making plans for the first Academic Banquet at PCHS.

. . . the Lettermen's Club who spent time making the sectional tournaments run smoothly.

. . . the Student Council striving to make PCHS better than ever by purchasing a school sign and activities board.

. . . the band, majorettes and Pops Group giving their all to make each performance special.

. . . the FFA members who are preparing to be the future farmers of Pocahontas County.

. . . the remaining organizations who contribute time and effort to plan school activities.

These are the separate but united, clans of PCHS, the ones who hear the wind cry "Warrior."

Clubs are important and they need a certain amount of time put into them. Bobbie Galford goes to the radio station to do programs, while the Pops Group gives a performance during the Christmas concert.

Elite Groups

To join most clubs, students don't have to prove themselves worthy of being chosen. They simply choose the clubs they wish to be in.

The Student Council and National Honor Society, however, are not the same as other clubs. To be a member of either of these clubs, a student must demonstrate leadership and be acceptable to teachers and their peers.

To be a member of the Student Council, students have to be elected either by homerooms as class representatives or by the student body as officers.

This year the Student Council purchased a marble sign for the front of the school, an information sign, and a stereo turntable for dances.

Only students who were recognized for their high grade point average could be a member of the National Honor Society. Besides having the grades, the students are evaluated by teachers in four categories which include character, leadership, scholarship, and service.

These two clubs will always be recognized as the more elite groups of students who try to achieve set goals for themselves and for their school.

The Student Council purchased an information sign for school activities. Emily Kinder, senior, responsible for putting all events on the sign.

Students who ran for an office for Student Council had the requirement of making a speech to the student body. Tony Pondexter, senior, gives his speech for president.

Athletic Clubs Thrive

Athletics are an important part of the high school years and athletic clubs are therefore active at PCHS.

There are two athletic clubs at PCHS, the Letterman's Club for men and the Girls Athletic Association (GAA) for women.

To participate in either club, one must play a sport of some kind at school, either basketball, football or track.

Some activities of the Letterman's Club this year were raffling a compound bow and six arrows, a bake sale at the sectional basketball tournaments as well as supervising the whole affair.

Some activities of the (GAA) were the concession stand at the basketball games and drafting their constitution and initiation rules.

Working For The Future

The Future Farmers of America (FFA) is a national organization open to all students enrolled in Vocational Agriculture. At PCHS, all students in Vo-Ag may join the school's chapter of FFA.

The FFA has been involved in many activities this year. Some of them include the State Judging Contest at Morgantown, W. Va. Ag-Expo. in Beckley, W. Va., Tech Beef Forum in Blacksburg, Virginia, and the Ham, Bacon and Egg Show at Lewisburg.

Other activities that the chapter was involved in were National FFA Week and the FFA Banquet held each year at the school.

This year's FFA Officers were president, Kevin Irvine; vice-FHA Week, the annual FHA Senior Tea, the school clean-up, the annual FHA Banquet and the chapter took a first place ribbon for their exhibit at the state fair for the second year in a row. The FHA also decorated the show case with the FBLA during National FHA Week.

Student Aides Offer Help

From the office to the classroom, student aides offer their help whenever and wherever it is needed.

Office aides can be seen in the hallways running errands between the office and the classrooms.

Teachers' aides have the job of grading papers and recording the grades in the record book. They also may have the job of typing up tests and running them off.

One should be a senior or a junior to be an aide and is allowed to be an aide only one period.

Memories On Film

Most students enjoy their club activities, but there are some students who enjoy them so that every spare minute is taken up with time devoted to that club.

The members of the Media Club and Special Topics class found themselves very busy as they made a collection of slides and movie film of the major happenings, events, and subjects of PCHS. The film was made to show the student body the main events of the past year and to recall memories of those events. Topics included friends, boredom, lunch, and others.

To cut down the cost the special topics class made their own slides for the program.

The Radio Club members had the chance to broadcast shows and events for WVMR.

Clubs Plan Activities

Students enjoy being in a club and participating in club activities. Some clubs even spend all their club periods planning a trip! The Explorers and Historical Club being in a club can help form long lasting friendships. Duwane Rexrode and Duwane Sharp, president and vice-president of the Explorers Club and also friends, pose for the camera.

are two that spent this whole year planning trips.

The Drama Club, on the other hand, usually likes to plan a skit or a play for the school. In past years the club had enough members to participate in producing a play for the student body. This year, however, there were not enough members to do such a show.

Setting goals and achieving them are a big part of these clubs. The students get a chance to work toward goals and then have the satisfaction of accomplishing them. Club members learn to appreciate each others work and also receive great rewards at the end of the year.

Groups On The Move

VICA, One Way and Nursing are definitely groups on the move as their members travel far and wide to obtain experience in the fields they have chosen as careers.

VICA participated in the United States Skill Olympics held at Beckley April 15-17. Sixteen students went to either observe or participate in the competition. Todd Shreve placed first in an electronics division and as a result received a full scholarship to Penn Tech.

Nursing is another group taking educational trips. The students travel to Marlinton, Denmar, Sweet Springs, and many other area hospitals to get the 100 clinical hours of on the job training it takes to complete the course. They also visit the Public, Family and Mental Health Departments and also, on occasion, the funeral home.

The One Way Club will be taking an educational tour May 12-14. Chaperoned by Mr. Norman Alderman and Mr. Tom Herold, this group of will travel to Williamsburg campground to stay. Some of the places of interest to be visited are Williamsburg, Yorktown, Newport Naval Base, Bus Gardens, the Nuclear Reactor, Surrey, and of course, the ocean.

Moneque LaStrapes, junior, works intently on a drafting project. Drafting students are eligible for VICA Club.

Jack Horner and Lori Crist, sponsors and instructors of the Horsemen's Club, lead a group discussion.

Saddles and Foils

The Horsemen's Club at PCHS is unique in that the sponsors are volunteers from the public and these sponsors are Jack Horner and Lori Crist both of Cass. Presently the club has no officers. Some goals of the club were to complete a trail ride at Watoga State Park, to get approval to ride horses in the school parking lot and possibly have a horse show during school for the students to observe.

Some members of the club have participated in horse shows at the Marlinton stockyards and at the state fair. They also participated in other competitions through 4-H.

Another unusual club here is the Fencing Club. It started this year being sponsored by William Johnson, but when he returned to college Mrs. Reta Rose, physical education teacher, took over the sponsorship.

Effective Strategy Necessary

To get through life easily a person must plan ahead for the future. In other words one must have a strategy, but life is not the only thing which requires strategy. Strategy is also necessary to some clubs at PCHS.

The Future Business Leaders of America organization helps prepare students enrolled in business classes for the working world by encouraging them to perfect business skills and then compete in regional and state competition. Strategy is used to determine who will be best in individual events.

In a game of chess a player must develop a strategy several moves in advance in order to beat his competitor.

The Prom Planning Committee must plan months in advance for the Prom. They must decide on a theme so that they can order decorations in time for the annual event, and a band must be booked. Advance strategy here again makes an event successful.

Band Takes High Honors

The PCHS Band traveled high and low this year, from Knoxville, Tennessee, to the Forest Festival in Elkins, the Shriners Bowl in Lewisburg, the Cherry River Festival in Richwood, and the Treasure Mountain Parade in Franklin.

The 1982 World's Fair was held in Knoxville, Tennessee. The band was the honor band Sept. 8. The band left school on the seventh after school and enjoyed three wonderful days in the sun.

The Forest Festival was very damp this year and the band placed fourth in their division.

The Shriners Bowl was a combination of a parade, a football game and a halftime show.

Some of the other parades in which the band received awards were the Cherry River Festival, which was the band's first parade, and the Treasure Mountain Parade. The band earned other awards including the Northern State Area Band Festival at Clarksburg, WV and the "Ambassadors of Goodwill" award which was presented by A. James Manchin, Secretary of State.

After marching season it was a time for individual honors to be brought back. The Solo and Ensemble Festival was the opportunity for superior and excellent ratings from PCHS students. Competing were a flute quartet, trumpet, clarinet, baritone and flute solos. Sean Milliner, senior, brought honors as he was selected for All-State Band.

The majorette squad went to camp during July and came back with the honors of three ribbons, a red, white and blue.

During the annual Christmas concert the band played a variety of old and new Christmas melodies. The band gives three concerts a year to the public and the student body.

During the parades they carried the banner and during football season they served as alternate majorettes. "They" are Robyn Hevener and Natalie Ashford banner girls. The 1982 World's Fair was one of the places the band visited this year and while they were there they had a chance to take in many sights including the Sunsphere and other exhibits.

Honors Show Choir Pride

Traveling far to attain distinction is familiar to the Concert Choir and Pops Ensemble, and from Fayetteville to Buckhannon the roads were passageways to happiness and satisfaction.

This year's Concert Choir was the first to travel out of the county. The choir traveled to Fayetteville to be adjudicated by four judges. Before Christmas there was practice at school, as well as every Monday night for the Christmas Cantata "The Messiah." Due to snow it was never performed in front of an audience. In May the annual Spring Concert was held with Chaigo's "Medly" being new and jazzy for the choir.

The Pops Ensemble did a salute to Walt Disney

this year that was presented at the All-State Choir Festival at Buchannon in February. The show was also presented to the grade schools and high school.

This year many records were broken. Fourmembers, Jamie Burks, David Campbell, Donna Gum, and Kim Scott, all seniors, were admitted into the All-State Choir. The four had to memorize seven songs and sing them in front of four judges in Fayetteville.

Mr. Charles Fauber, choir director, said, "I was pleased with the group. They worked very hard especially giving their extra time after school."

Doing their salute to Walt Disney are the girls singing "We Are Siamese" to the boys of the group.

Sharing Hardships As Well As Victories

According to the dictionary, journalism is the work of writing for, editing, managing, or producing a newspaper, magazine, or yearbook.

Journalism at PCHS is a combination of these things and more. One has the opportunity to learn new things, including working with other people as a team, sharing hardships as well as victories.

Journalism requires a lot of individual effort as well. One has to write stories for the newspaper, sell and design ads, lay out and edit pages, design headlines, learn yearbook terminology, design yearbook pages and write captions and body copy for them as well. One must also master the fundamentals of what makes a good picture and much, much more including regular journalism classwork.

It's been said that the student in journalism should be the skinniest person in school because he's "on the run" so much and must rush to make deadlines. Perhaps those thinking of dieting should take the class!

Polly Oref said, "Journalism took alot of hard work but it was worthwhile."

Warrior Games ...

The word game can pertain to a number of things, but to those at PCHS,

የምርት ስልጣን ይሰጣል፡፡ የጥገና ምርመራው በጥገና ምርመራ ሰነድ ይደረጋል፡፡ የጥገና ምርመራው በጥገና ምርመራ ሰነድ ይደረጋል፡፡

Girls Set Six New Records

The girls track team ended their season with a fine showing for their hard work. Six new records went down in the books this year and the 4 X 100 relay team and shot putter qualified for the state track meet held in Charleston.

The new records were set by the 4 X 200 relay team consisting of Huffman, Irvine, Withers and Fleming, with a time of 1:55.1; 4 X 100 relay team consisting of Huffman,

Irvine, Withers and Fleming with a time of 54.3 (qualified for state); 4 X 800 relay team consisting of Grey, Irvine, Alderman and Alderman with a time of 12:48.9; 1600 - Donna Meadows with a time of 6:34.7; 400 - Lorette Irvine with a time of 1:05.0 and shot put - Michelle Withers with a throw of 34'5" (qualified for state and placed 3rd in the Girls' AA Shot Put; second year at state placing in the top six.)

Two Go To State

"One record broken, one record set and two going to state. "Not bad season," said track coach Delmos Barb.

The 1983 track season wound up with Shawn Ervine, senior, going to state in discus, Duane Collins, junior, going to state in the mile run and Chris Phillips breaking the school two mile record with a time of 11:01.1, also Herby Barlow set a time of 46.1 in the 300 low hurdles.

Other individuals and relay teams who were hopefuls to go to state but didn't make it were as follows. 4X100 relay: Mike Liptak, Chester Shifflett, William Hamons and Steve McCloud.

4X200 relay: Chester Shifflett, Mike Liptak, Bryan Arthur and Duane Collins.

100 meter: Carl Greathouse, Steve McCloud, Brad Fleming and Mike Liptak.

Shuttle Hurdles: Shawn Ervine, Chester Shifflett, Mike Liptak and Houston Hanshew.

2 mile: Chris Phillips, Pat Burns.

Shotput: Ronnie Rose and Raymond Adams.

Discus: Sam Rittenhouse and Rick Lantz.

Freshmen, JV Improve Seasons

Will and determination brought the JV and freshman teams to an equally fine seasons end. Both teams showed a willingness to win even if they were down in the fourth quarter they never gave up until the final buzzer sounded.

The determination and will shown this year by the teams gave the coaches, the fans and the student body something to look forward to in the years to come.

Discussing their strategy to make "the kill" the JV squad assembles around Coach Friel to determine the "executors."

1983 saw the resignation of head football coach, Elmer Friel, and the end of a sports era in Pocahontas County. Coach Friel finished his football coaching career with 139 wins, 77 losses and 6 ties turning the reins over to newly hired coach Mike Smith and the assistant coaches Delmos Barb and Jeff Haight. In Coach Friel's football career he saw his 1967 Marlinton High School team clinch the "A" state football championship. In totaling Coach Friel's records of football, basketball and baseball he has accumulated 407 wins, 193 losses and 6 ties. Coach Friel will remain as assistant varsity and JV basketball coach.

A Disappointing Season

VARSITY WINS ONE

The 1982 season was a disappointing one for the "Warriors." After completing a lot of practice hours in the hot sun they got off to a bad start by losing to Nicholas Co.

33-0. But even though it was a long season for the Warriors, who didn't score until the seventh game, they never gave up trying. Their dedication finally paid off as they posted their only win by beating Webster Co. 19-10.

The Warriors could take some consolation in knowing that they played one of the toughest schedules in the state. They played five of the top ten teams in WV and one in Maryland, including Southern Maryland, Greenbrier West, Marlinton, Richwood, Central Preston and Musselman.

"Escape." That's the name of the game in the run by senior Chuck Workman against Central Preston. Pocahontas lost their homecoming game 40 to 0.

Pritt, J. L. Shriner, Kirk Walton, Timmy Wilfong, R. W. Burns, Joey Arbogast, Robert Sharp, Brian Layman.

Coach Bill Johnson and trainer Jeff Haught discuss the conditions of the game as freshman Mike Beverage listens. This year's freshmen finished with a 1-5 record.

With less than seven minutes remaining in the first half and trailing by twelve points, Coach Delmos Barb gives instructions to senior quarterback and Captain Chuck Workman during the homecoming game with Central Preston. The final score was 40-0.

At this Greenbrier West vs Pocahontas game the Warriors efforts weren't quite enough. Warriors were defeated at home 53-0.

The freshmen make a successful goal line stand, but are defeated 14-8 by Webster at home.

FOOTBALL

Accepting Defeat

Defeat was a bitter word to the freshman football team which won only one game this season while still continuing to play hard ball. Most of the players had to play both defense and offense because the team was so small in numbers. Mike Beverage, quarterback, and Tommy Pritt and Rick Friel, running backs, were the offensive leaders, while Tim Riley, J. L. Shriner and Mike Beverage led the defense, according to Coach Bill Johnson.

The junior varsity team, plagued by injuries and cancellations, played only two games this season. Outstanding players according to Coach Delmos Barb were Rusty Hamons, Doug McPaters, Jeff Barlow, Herbie Barlow and Brian Arthur.

The Junior Varsity squad included Dayna Castle, Elizabeth Newkirk, Donna Friel and Terri Rexrode (head).

The freshman cheerleaders give their football team support by attending all home and away games.

Cheering and having fun at the Shriner's Bowl Parade were Michelle Withers, Brenda Ricottilli, Tracy Sharp, Karen Phillips and Sandy Weatherholt.

For the first time at PCHS the varsity squad included male cheerleaders.

Lots of Cheer

In the past, the cheerleaders at PCHS have been having trouble finding a sponsor. Because of all the long hours of hard work and the many trips, teachers are reluctant to sponsor the cheerleaders.

This year Mr. Glen Wade, vice-principal, sponsored the group. Although Mr. Wade took the cheerleaders to many activities, they rode the bus to away games.

This past summer the varsity and junior varsity squad attended a cheerleading camp at the University of Richmond. The varsity squad received two blue ribbons, two red ribbons and the spirit stick for their efforts.

The junior varsity squad received one white ribbon and three blue ribbons.

Together the varsity and junior varsity squad received the spirit stick twice.

Money seems to be tight these days as Mr. Raymond Tracy, physical science teacher, grips his money before having to pay it out in fees.

A Warrior Is ...

By definition a Warrior is a fighting man, but a Warrior at PCHS is much, much more. A Warrior is ...

... the senior doing his best in his last game of basketball against Greenbrier West.

... the junior who realizes that the 1983 prom "Precious and Few" must make students proud to be there.

... the sophomore who understands how important he is to the school lends his support wherever he's needed.

... the freshman who is still trying desperately to become a part of it all.

... the teacher who gives of his time and talents to assist students to achieve their full potential.

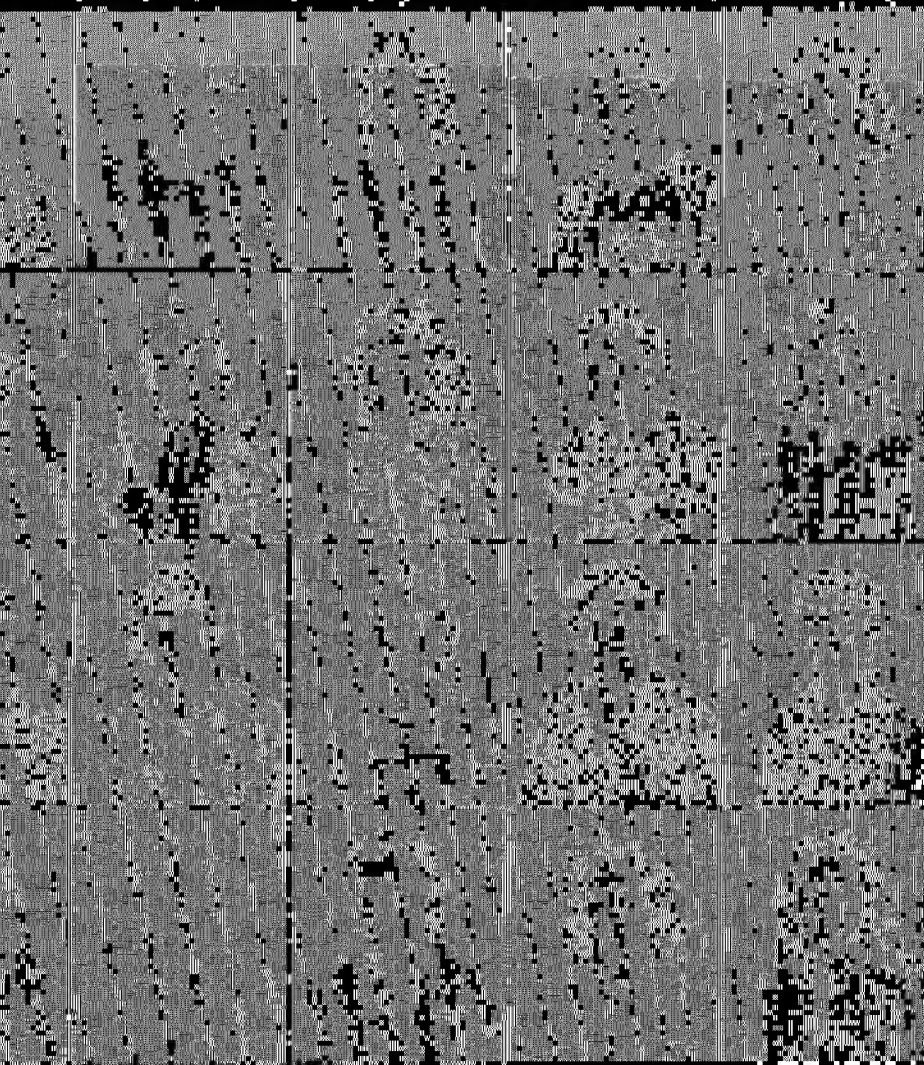

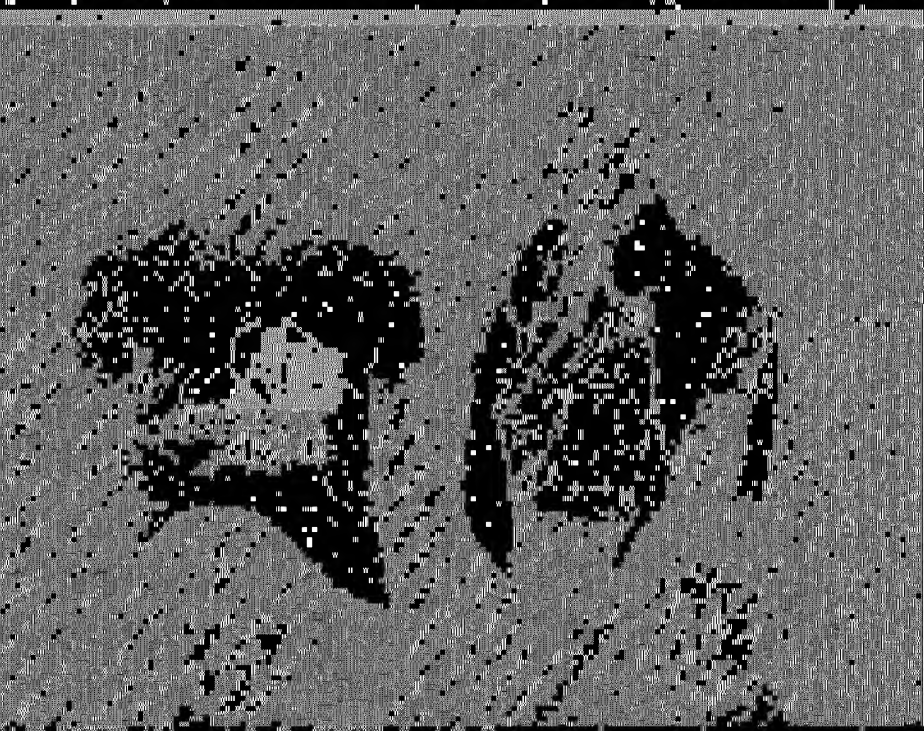

... the administrator who takes to heart the wishes and welfare of his student body and teachers to allow them activity time, volleyball tournaments and other special moments.

Such are the people of PCHS, those who hear the wind cry "Warrior."

What do "E.T.", "Rocky III", and "An Officer and a Gentleman" all have in common? There are three of the most popular movies of 1982.

'VAL' GIRLS NEW TREND

"Totally, fer sure, fer sure. Like its really turbular."

Valley Girl slang and clothes hit the scene in 1982. All this has been around for a while, but it really became prominent with Frank & Moon Zappa's version of the song "Valley Girl."

Recognizing a "Val" wasn't hard for most people because of the unusual way they dressed and the peculiar language they use, fer sure.

Spirit Chains

Spirit chains of different colors to signify each class were being put together frantically before the Homecoming pep rally deadline. Spirit chains were one of the wild-n-crazy ideas of showing support for the Warrior team. Each chain link cost 5¢ and 10¢ bought three. The class with the longest chain won the event and the junior class got the money for sponsoring the event. They made exactly $710.28.

Amazingly, the seniors who were way behind the sophomores caught up to tie with them, Everette Underwood, senior, carried the jar around encouraging seniors to donate as much money as possible.

A seemingly endless chain was the final task of the classes during Spirit Week. The sophomores attempt at winning the chain event was foiled by the seniors who tied with them for first place.

The chain event gave the classes a chance to work together as a team. Angel Sharp and Michelle Withers, sophomores, among others help work on putting their chain together.

JUNIORS

These junior class officers, Tony Arbogast, president; Jennifer Fleming, vice-president; Pat Hinkle, treasurer, and Shari Cassell, secretary, assisted the junior class to raise money this year through selling candy, selling links for the spirit chain in which all the classes participated and through sponsoring a homecoming dance which was very successful despite a 1-9 football record. This money went for the 1983 junior-senior prom. This year's prom theme will be "The Precious and Few."

HAIR STYLES

In the beginning of the 80's long hair was popular. Corn rowing, french braiding, and french twists were just a few of the ways that long hair was worn.

As the punk rock scene appeared, that same long style was chopped off into some interesting styles influenced by the punkers. For women, the most popular cut was very short on top, curled to stand up and the hair was extremely short to show the ears. For the men the hair was extremely short and neat. But quick and easy care is what everyone was looking for.

Seniors Socialize

Being a senior is tough because of the pressure to pass and have enough credits to graduate, because of the choice of what college or field of work is best after graduation and because of the intensity building up inside for graduation night. Seniors, however, somehow find the time to socialize with friends, have fun and amuse themselves as best as possible.

Socializing at Christopher's or Pepperoni's is nothing unusual for groups of friends. Others find the movies in Elkins or Lewisburg a pleasant get-away from the daily grind. For some seniors just meeting at a ballgame or a person's house suits them fine. Still others find time to have small "group" parties at special occasions like birthdays, Christmas and New Year's.

Closer To Future Dreams

When we were young we used to dream of cotton candy clouds and rivers of milk chocolate. However, as we get older our dreams became more realistic.

As seniors we must set higher goals for ourselves and be willing to work harder to attain them.

For instance, Susan Riley said, "I am planning to become a secretary. I have gone to Webster Career College and Fairmont State College to see which has the best program for my needs."

Brenda Curry said, "I am going to become an aerospace engineer.

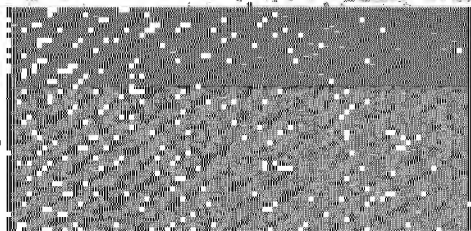

I am going to go to school at West Virginia University. I have taken physical science, physics, and calculus to prepare myself for my future."

Marvin Sharp said, "I am going into the Marine Corps. It will help me prepare for life. After I get out I plan to go to college."

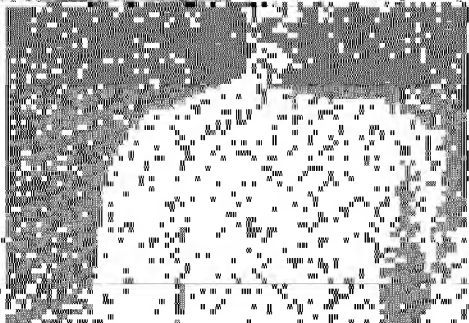

Martha Barlow said, "I am going to go to college to major in business administration. After college I plan to become a hospital administrator."

Paul Murphy said he is going to college to major in computer science.

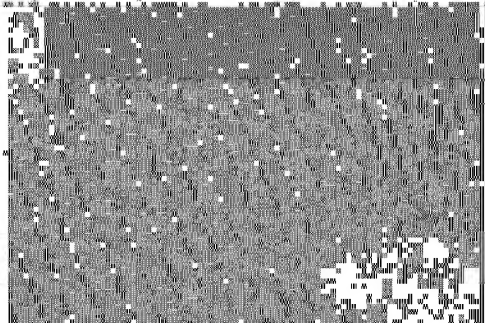

These seniors have set goals for themselves and they must be willing to attain them.

The first of the three photographs is a close-up of a person's face, possibly a woman, looking down or to the side. The second photograph is a group of three young people smiling. The third photograph is a young man and woman, with the man holding a telephone receiver to his ear.

Defying the law of gravity is man's dream but Houston Hanshew, senior, practically makes this dream reality with the aid of David Liptak, senior.

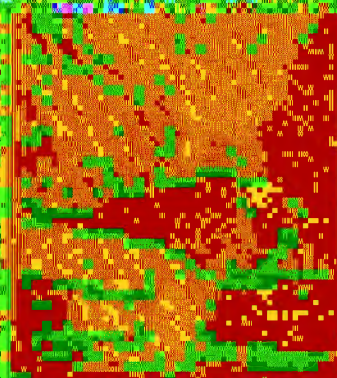

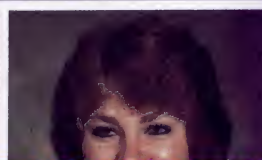

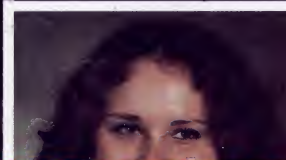

Colors sometimes find it hard to catch a moment relax or think about life's happenings. Brenda Bottilli found time to reminisce.

What a mess! Hidden behind a mask of bubble gum is Marvin Sharp, senior. The bubble gum blowing contest was part of the Sadie Hawkins Day events sponsored by the seniors.

Turn the Page, Recall Yesterday

Soon the class of 1983 will be turning another page. This doesn't mean that they won't be able to turn back and relive the memories of yesterday, only that they will move on to make new friends and new lives. Some seniors here relate unforgettable memories.

Ginny Coleman says she will never forget the first time that Chet Shifflett kissed her at school.

Paul Murphy said he'd always remember the New Year's party at Liptak's with all his friends.

Rick Carpenter said it would be impossible to forget all of the great times with Shelley Helmick.

So, seniors, move ahead, turn the page and live your dreams!

The choir class seems to be amused by something that is happening behind the scenes, while Mr. Charles Fauber, music teacher, tries to figure out what the laughter is all about.

Teachers Are Also Students

Many students don't realize it, but teachers also have to go to school to learn new methods for teaching, to take renewal classes to remain certified, and to keep up with the times.

As the computer comes of age, teachers who have never worked with a computer find they must know some computer basics to be able to teach from one in the future. Summer computer classes were offered to county teachers at Snowshoe. Other teachers returned to college during the summer for other reasons such as upgrading of the teaching certificate, to get a Master's or Doctorate Degree, or just for fun.
